WELCOME

FROM THE ARNOVA PRESIDENT

Dear Colleagues:

It is my great pleasure to welcome you to ARNOVA's 47th annual conference and to Austin the capital of Texas. Many individuals worked diligently on the conference events to complement all the wonderful entertainment and dining attractions that Austin offers. There is much to entice you in the city and in our conference sessions.

The number and variety of conference-related events seem to grow each year and with it our capacity to be responsive to member interests. Our conference co-chairs Mary Kay Gugerty and Brenda Bushouse, track chairs, and numerous other volunteers assembled an array of diverse opportunities for us. The dedication and generosity of members in offering their expertise, talents, effort and ideas to this conference is truly amazing. Our conference coordinator, Mary Kate Myers, responded to member feedback in managing the logistics of the conference so you will see some changes from previous years. The conference reflects the creative efforts of the Local Arrangement Committee led by Moira Porter and Kelly Pratlett from the RGK Center for Philanthropy and Community Service. Registration fees do not cover all the conference expenses and philanthropic support is critical to keeping ARNOVA fiscally stable. Much appreciated are our conference sponsors and member supporters. Our Institutional hosts this year are the Bush School at Texas A&M, the Center for Philanthropy and Nonprofit Leadership at Rice University, OneStar Foundation, the RGK Center at the LBJ School at UT Austin, The University of Texas at San Antonio College of Public Policy, and the University of Nebraska at Omaha School of Public Administration. In addition to these and other university sponsors, also supporting this conference are the Ford Foundation, Charles Stewart Mott Foundation and the Lilly Foundation. I am delighted to report that the One Star Foundation sponsorship will facilitate the attendance of Texas-based doctoral students that are studying in humanities and/or are African-American, Hispanic, Latino or Native American. Thanks to all!

This year, we are piloting some innovations designed to allow for even more member engagement and celebration. This year marks the 10th year anniversary of our Diversity Scholars PDW. Please come to the membership meeting and help us honor the decade-long dedication of the very effective leaders of this program, Pier Rogers, Jennifer Wade-Berg and Judith Weisinger. At the membership meeting, we also will share information on the status of ARNOVA and its strategic plan implementation. We would love your participation in this key conference event.

This conference will mark the end of board terms for Hector Cordero-Guzman, Beth Gazley, Jennifer Mosley and Mark Sidel. Their contributions to ARNOVA as board members are immeasurable and it was a joy to work with them. I am looking forward to the participation of our incoming board members, Esi Ansah, Cristina Balboa, Curtis Child, and Helen Liu. Mary Kay Gugerty is staying on the board for another term of service. Thanks to all who ran for a seat and voted in the election.

I hope you enjoy the conference and its setting. Our theme, "From Relief to Resilience: How Philanthropy, Nonprofits and Volunteers Bridge the Gap between Crisis and Sustainability" inspired sessions that promise to be informative and thought provoking. As always, the ARNOVA board is committed to the ARNOVA conference leaving participants refreshed and energized.

Sincerely,

Mary Tschirhart, The Ohio State University

FROM THE ARNOVA CO-CHAIRS

Welcome to ARNOVA's 2018 Annual Conference! We meet in Austin, Texas under the conference theme of From Relief to Resilience: How Philanthropy, Nonprofits and Volunteers Bridge the Gap between Crisis and Sustainability. We are gathering at a time when the divides in our country seem larger than ever, yet the ability of communities to rally in times of need remains inspiring. We convened last year in Grand Rapids, in the wake of on-going civil unrest and the devastation of natural disasters. This year we have the opportunity to look back and learn from some of these experiences with the perspective of time and new crises that have emerged.

As scholars and practitioners, we know the critical role that philanthropy and the nonprofit sector has to play in local, regional and national resiliency. ARNOVA's visit to Texas provides the opportunity to engage and learn from the immediate challenges of immigration and migration as well as the opportunity to learn from the cross-sector responses to Hurricane Harvey a year ago. In both cases, collaborative networks comprised of citizens, community organizations, nonprofits, foundations, government and private companies responded in ways that provide important lessons for future crises.

While the current debates in our country present real challenges to the fabric of our civic life, during our time together we will see many examples of initiatives that have spanned divides to address crises in ways that move us from crisis response to resilience and sustainability. In our opening plenary on Thursday, we hear about community response to natural disasters such as Hurricane Harvey and cross-sector perspectives on mobilizing assets, rebuilding, and preparing communities for future environmental crises. Our closing plenary on Friday examines the challenges posed by human-made disasters such as policies that led to immigration crises at the U.S./Mexico border. Each of our plenaries focus on ways that nonprofits, volunteers and community organizations have responded to crisis and moved through relief towards building future resilience .

While our sessions represent the diverse range of interests and expertise brought by our members, the conference theme this year explores the particular role played by networks of citizen volunteers, nonprofits and philanthropy in responding to crises and moving towards resilience and sustainability. A number of sessions examine the causes and consequences of these developments, especially in relation to policy and partnerships with government. The conference has a robust selection of 393 papers, 36 panels, and 41 colloquia grouped into 14 substantive areas. We continue with our new model from last year—the lightning session, where scholars present mini-overviews of their work and the focus is on audience participations and conversation.

We have also continued to expand the number of professional development sessions at the conference, part of the ongoing effort to ensure ARNOVA remains a welcoming, inclusive community for scholars and practitioners of all backgrounds. These innovations and the conference itself would not have been possible without many hours of voluntary service of our ARNOVA members and financial support of our donors. We thank the local arrangements committee, proposal reviewers, session organizers, chairs, and participants. We especially appreciate the hard working ARNOVA staff for all of their support. To new attendees as well seasoned participants, we welcome you to the conference and look forward to your participation in our shared ARNOVA community.

ARNOVA Code of Ethics

The Association for Research on Nonprofit Organizations and Voluntary Action (ARNOVA) is a leading interdisciplinary community of people dedicated to fostering, through research and education, the creation, application and dissemination of knowledge on nonprofit organizations, philanthropy, civil society and voluntary action. ARNOVA brings together scholars and practitioners from a wide array of disciplines, fields and backgrounds with both theoretical and applied interests in the day-to-day concerns of third-sector organizations and in the improvement of the work of these organizations and quality of life for the people and communities they serve.

This Code of Ethics focuses on the conduct of ARNOVA members as they serve, represent, engage with and interact within the Association. While the Board of Directors of ARNOVA is empowered to act on behalf of the Association's interests, this code is fundamentally a self-executing ethics document that calls for individual commitment to self-compliance.

The Principles

Principle 1: Abide by Professional Integrity. ARNOVA members strive to promote honesty, transparency, fairness, and respect for human dignity in the scholarship, teaching, and practice of their profession and to avoid professional misconduct or the perception of misconduct.

Principle 2. Strive for Professional Excellence. ARNOVA members contribute to strengthening individual and collective capabilities and support the effective, professional development of others towards excellence in their work.

Principle 3. Respect and Promote Diversity and Seek to Sustain Inclusion. ARNOVA members acknowledge the diversity of the ARNOVA community as an asset and a value. Members treat others with equity, fairness, and respect and work hard for more inclusion within the Association.

Principle 4. Promote a Welcoming Space. ARNOVA members strive to ensure a welcoming and safe space for those with whom they interact, in person or virtually, during ARNOVA activities and governance. Members do not engage in any form of bullying or harassment.

Principle 5. Uphold Full Transparency and Disclosure. ARNOVA members will not engage in actions that reflect improper conflicts of interests and abuse of power within the Association. Members will disclose any interest (financial or non-financial, individual or institutional, private or public) that might constitute a conflict with and for ARNOVA especially when assuming responsibilities within the Association.

By accepting membership in ARNOVA, members agree to abide by this Code of Ethics.

Reframing Nonprofit Organizations

Democracy, Inclusion, and Social Change

Edited by

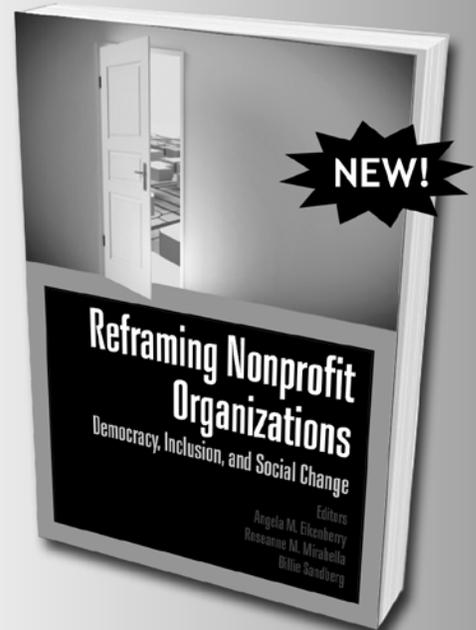

Angela M. Eikenberry, University of Nebraska at Omaha

Roseanne M. Mirabella, Seton Hall University

Billie Sandberg, Portland State University

Fall 2018. 256 pp. Paperback: ISBN 978-0-99923596-6 $49.95

Now, more than ever, with growing economic and social inequalities and ethno-nationalisms around the world, students of nonprofit and voluntary organization management need tools, methods, and case studies that enable them to critically think about how to not only cope, but also challenge and change, the environments in which they work. This book serves as a critical companion to standard nonprofit management textbooks by providing students with an opportunity to rethink unquestioned assumptions about nonprofit and voluntary organizations and their management and to challenge the status quo.

Praise for Reframing Nonprofit Organizations:

“Without question, Reframing Nonprofit Management should be the second text in any thoughtful course about nonprofit management. In addition to providing alternative insights that will help future managers and volunteers understand the realities of nonprofit organizations, Reframing Nonprofit Management will make class discussions and assignments far more interesting and useful. An enthusiastic ‘thank you’ to Eikenberry, Mirabella and Sandberg.”

—Steven Ott, University of Utah

“This is a much needed and potentially eye-opening book for scholars and students of nonprofit and voluntary organization management. Its critical perspective approach helps us be more aware of alternative assumptions, pathways, and outcomes and be more cautious adopters of management theories and tools.”

—Mary Tschirhart, The Ohio State University

The Center for Nonprofit and NGO Studies

A unique program with endless opportunities

NIU's Nonprofit and NGO Studies program prepares future leaders who want to make a difference in the world. Our undergraduate interdisciplinary program is among only a select few in the United States. We recently changed our name to better reflect our purpose and have a new director to achieve high levels of excellence as part of the School of Public and Global Affairs.

The Center for Nonprofit and NGO Studies offers services and programs to nonprofit organizations and engages in original research. We believe that the nonprofit sector is vital to society and it is essential to work with organizations and conduct research that promotes growth within the field.

Center For Philanthropy & Nonprofit Leadership

We envision a vibrant philanthropic sector in which nonprofit organizations achieve their missions and people are inspired to give and serve. Our mission is to increase the effectiveness and impact of the nonprofit sector by providing education and nurturing leadership among professionals and those who support the work of nonprofit organizations. Since its inception, the center has served more than 1,100 nonprofit organizations.

The center is part of the Susanne M. Glasscock School of Continuing Studies at Rice University in Houston, Texas. Through a variety of courses, certificate programs and conferences, we provide best practices in fundraising, fundraising operations, board service and nonprofit leadership to nonprofit professionals seeking to build their skillsets. celebrating 10 of Diversity YEARS

THANK YOU TO OUR MEMBERS FOR SUPPORTING 10 YEARS OF THE DIVERSITY PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT WORKSHOP (PDW) AT THE ANNUAL ARNOVA CONFERENCE

led by
PIER ROGERS · JENNIFER WADE-BERG · JUDY WEISINGER

“The best part of the PDW is hearing the grad students' as they realize that so much of what we discuss is all that you don't read about or learn elsewhere that can make or break you in your career trajectory - in or out of academe.”

-PIER ROGERS

Working with the Diversity Scholars PDW has been an invaluable and rewarding experience. When I reflect upon these amazing scholars, I often see my younger self through their inquisitive eyes and am quickly energized and reminded of the reason why I began this journey. Mandela said “Education is the most powerful weapon which you can use to change the world.” I do this work to help scholars find and create their seat at a table that can often be uninviting.

-JENNIFER WADE-BERG

“Co-leading this workshop with Jenn and Pier has been one of the best experiences in my academic career--they are incredible teammates! It's very rewarding to be a part of the Scholars' professional journeys and to work with so many wonderful ARNOVA colleagues who participate in the program”

-JUDY WEISINGER

Our mission at AROCSA is to promote and advance a community of excellence in research and practice on civil society in the service of African development.

AROCSA was founded in September 2015 in Accra, Ghana, under the auspices of the Association for Research on Non-Profit Organizations and Voluntary Action (ARNOVA), to promote and advance a community of excellence in research and practice on civil society in the service of African development.

There are multiple, stand-alone efforts to encourage research and knowledge-sharing on the ‘third sector’ globally, and this is evident in the existence of various organizations, conferences, academic journals etc. in various parts of the world. In Africa, the contemporary complexities of governance and relationships between sectors -- public, private, non-profit, and academia -- has led to the rise in the relevance of civil society and the citizen sector in general. It is therefore crucial to have a continent-wide organization that will serve as the bedrock of advancing knowledge and practice in the area of civil societies in Africa. This is why AROCSA was set up

AROCSA expects to operate in the five areas listed below:

1. The creation of a fund to support research and scholarship on civil society in Africa
2. An annual conference bringing together scholars and practitioners for networking, learning, and skills-building
3. A regional academic journal focused on African civil society
4. Fellowships for doctoral students and civil society professionals
5. Training for scholars and civil society organization (CSO) staff on applied research methods and evidence-based work.
